

SINISTER HINTS BY MCABE TO SULZER

Fresh Attack on Governor Savagely Insinuates Perjury Charge in Vermont and Prison Worry.

TAMMANY SOURCE EVIDENT

"Huckleberry" Scandal and Hydro Veto Brought Up—Innuendo About Alaska and Cuba—Harmony Beyond Hope.

From a Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.
Albany, June 18.—Patrick E. McCabe, who exposed Governor Sulzer's clandestine meetings with "Boss" Murphy of Tammany Hall, and who was in turn assailed by Sulzer at the final meeting of the direct primary campaign in Harmanus Bleecker Theatre here last night, returned to-day to the attack on Sulzer in a second statement, which for savage onslaught and wealth of innuendo would be hard to beat.

The Albany Democratic boss challenges the Governor:

To read his own answer to the McCabe patronage letter.

To explain the circumstances of an accusation of perjury in the State of Vermont.

To say whether he can state, as McCabe does, that he does not owe a cent to any man in either Albany or New York City.

To answer whether the charges made by McCabe in his first statement—that Sulzer secretly visited Murphy at night or in the early morning hours in March and April this year—are true.

To reveal anything he knows of the private or public life of either McCabe or Murphy which has been dishonest.

Prison Innuendo.

In addition to these direct challenges McCabe puts up to Governor Sulzer in an insinuatingly sinister fashion this paragraph:

"Governor Sulzer seems to be worried a great deal over the fact that 'Boss' Tweed died in prison. I would not, if I were he, be distressed about that matter, because he has just as good a chance as any of us. I wonder if they ever have heard anything of 'Boss' Tweed up in Alaska or down in Cuba, or if the departed boss ever heard anything of the 'Huckleberry Railroad' or the 'hydro-power bill.' I know from what I have read that 'Boss' Tweed took a deep interest in Washington politics, and 'Boss' Sulzer has also."

McCabe makes no secret of the fact that he has the information in hand to meet denial of either his direct accusations or his insinuations against the Governor, and altogether he seems to be very much in the position of a man who is hoping the other fellow will knock the chip off his shoulder.

He is trying to brush aside the counter attack on his letter pleading for jobs for Democrats from the incoming Governor, which Sulzer read at the meeting last night, as an epistle of which he is not ashamed, and of which, as a dyed-in-the-wool partisan, he is, in fact, rather proud.

Furthermore, McCabe intimates now that he has really only begun to get started on the job of telling what he knows about the Governor, and he seems to be looking forward with pleasure to the work ahead of him.

Covert Perjury Reference.

The most stinging paragraph of his statement McCabe decided to leave in a sort of indirect form, which carries with it, by innuendo, what is probably a more bitter style of attack than could have been made by a direct accusation. In it he says:

"The Governor called me a 'little 'Boss' Tweed' in his remarks, but I assure the Governor that I never was accused of perjury in the State of Vermont."

He was urged by his own friends, to whom he showed the statement before making it public, either to make this

MAN FROM DEVIL'S
ISLAND CAPTURED

District Attorney Fach of Richmond Leads Successful Raid on Pleuchot's Home in "Skunk's Misery."

DOOR BATTERED DOWN

Prisoner Who Escaped from French Penal Colony Denies Complicity in Burning and Robbing of Dier House.

Led by Albert C. Fach, the District Attorney of Staten Island, detectives stormed the home of Albert Pleuchot, one of the escaped Devil's Island lifers, yesterday afternoon, and after fifteen minutes the raiding party succeeded in forcing an entrance through the rear door, and at the point of revolvers they arrested Pleuchot. On the prisoner Detective Alexander Nicolay, of the Central office squad, found a stiletto eight inches long.

Pleuchot was taken before Magistrate Nathaniel Marsh, in the Stapleton court, and on motion of District Attorney Fach was committed to the Richmond County Jail in default of $4,500 bail. Pleuchot was charged with three crimes—carrying a concealed weapon, setting fire to the home of Jacques Dier, at Eltingville, Staten Island, on the night of June 6, and taking from it diamonds and jewelry valued at $4,000, $50 in cash and bankbooks representing $6,000.

Seven Now Under Arrest.

This makes seven prisoners that are now in custody, either charged with complicity in the Dier affair or held as material witnesses. Their cases will be brought before the Richmond County Grand Jury to-day and true bills charging felonies are expected against four or five of them.

The prisoners now under arrest beside Pleuchot are Marie Louise, Pleuchot's common law wife; Armand Fauchon, also an escaped life term from Devil's Island; Emil Le Roy, Louis Capillon and Elise and Ernest Fauchon, the wife and son of Fauchon. Fauchon, the elder, and Le Roy, who were arrested in Montreal on Tuesday, were arraigned before the Queen's Bench in that city yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Frank H. Innis, who was sent to Montreal by Mr. Fach when he learned of the arrest of the pair, appeared on behalf of the United States authorities. After a brief hearing the two prisoners decided to waive extradition, and they will probably reach here to-morrow.

The capture of Pleuchot was dramatic in the extreme. With several detectives District Attorney Fach jumped into an automobile and hurried to "Skunk's Misery," as the little hollow where Pleuchot's home is known. They found the doors barricaded. They called upon Pleuchot to surrender, but received no answer.

Leaving some of his men to guard the front door, the District Attorney and Lieutenant Nicolay, with drawn revolvers, went around to the rear. They banged on the door with the butts of their guns, and Nicolay called out, in French:

"Will you surrender quietly, or is there going to be a fight?"

There was no answer. The District Attorney and the detective then threw their combined weight against the door, and it started to give. This action they repeated several times, and finally burst the lock of the door.

Pleuchot Throws Up Sponge.

Pleuchot saw there was no further good in resisting, and cried out he would pull away the heavy oaken chest of drawers with which he had reinforced the door and admit the raiders. This he did, and while District Attorney Fach covered him with his revolver, Nicolay searched him. In Pleuchot's pocket he found the long stiletto.

Pleuchot made a signed statement for the District Attorney, in which he admitted he had escaped from Devil's Island, to which he had been sentenced for life after having been convicted of several safe robberies, but he denied any complicity in the robbery and burning of Dier's home.

FIGHTS FOR WAR SECRETS

Government to Press Suit Against Torpedo Makers.

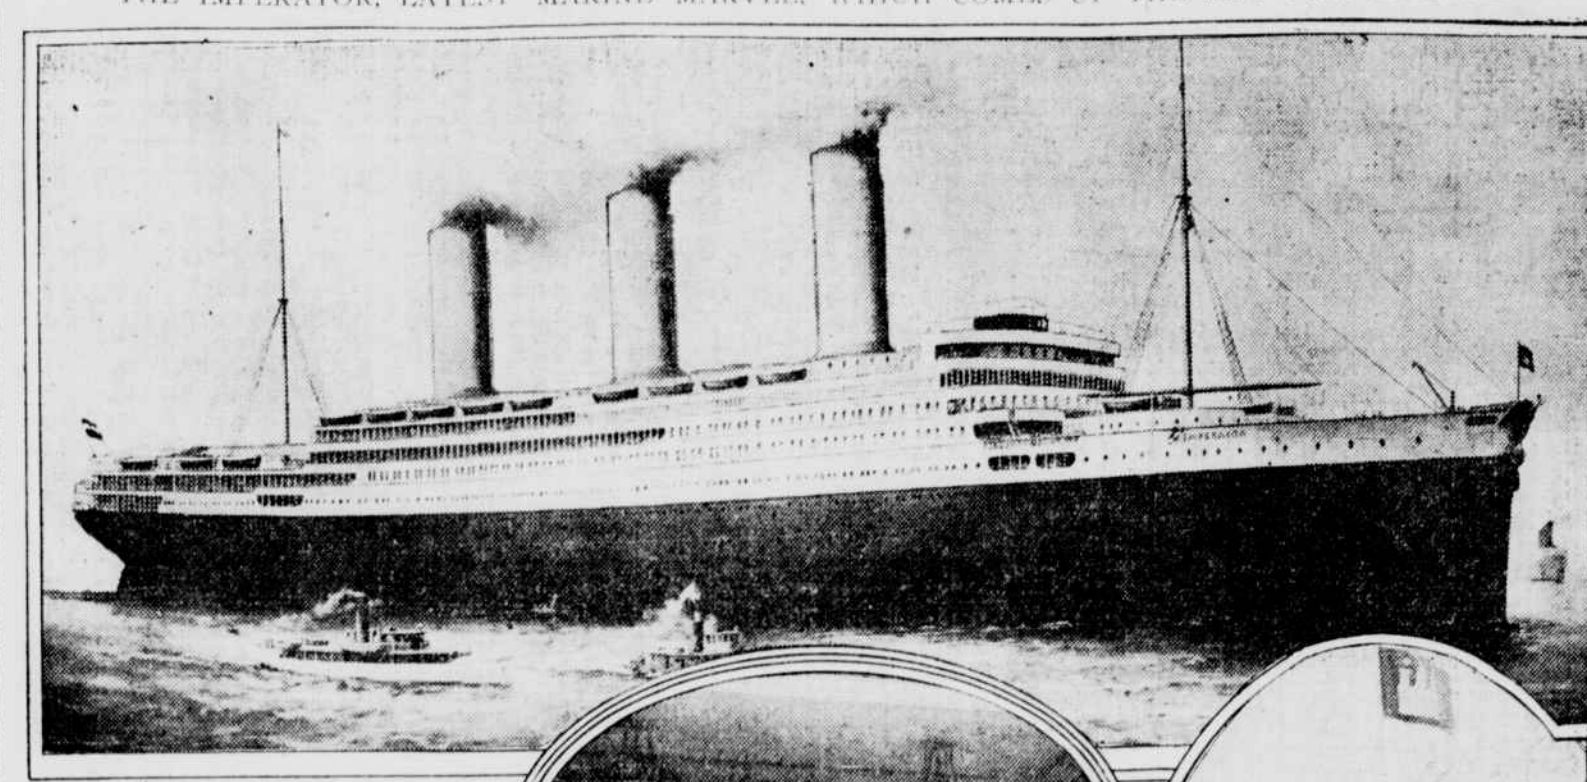

Washington, June 18.—To protect war secrets involved in naval ordnance manufactured under private contract, the government will vigorously prosecute the injunction suit instituted at Brooklyn to restrain the E. W. Bliss Company from exhibiting or selling to foreign countries, especially to the Whitehead Company of Great Britain, torpedoes similar to those made for our navy.

Malcolm A. Coles, special assistant to Attorney General McReynolds and an expert in patent law, was assigned to-day to assist United States Attorney William J. Young, of Brooklyn, in the conduct of the suit, which involves the national defense law, forbidding any one divulging military secrets.

Officials say that the "torpedo torpedo," propelled by balanced turbines revolving in opposite directions, was developed jointly by the Bureau of Ordnance and the Bliss company, and that it would be impossible to separate the government's patents from the company's.

HARVARD BEATS YALE
IN FOURTEEN INNINGS

Felton and Hardwick, of Football Fame, Blast Hopes of Blue Nine.

THIRD GAME IN BROOKLYN

Crimson Team Ties Score in the Ninth Frame and Wins on Mighty Drive to Deep Centre.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Cambridge, Mass., June 18.—Harvard's baseball team turned the tables on Yale in the second game of the series here to-day after a bitter struggle of fourteen innings. The score was 4 to 3, and Huntington Hardwick landed the telling punch, much as he did in the football game last fall, with a mighty drive far over the centre fielder's head.

Yale won the first game at New Haven on Tuesday by a score of 2 to 0, so that a third is now necessary, and it will be played on Saturday at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, the home of the Superbas.

A Harvard class day and commencement crowd, numbering upward of thirteen thousand persons, watched the wonderfully exciting battle, and went half wild in the fourteenth inning, when Gannett, the right fielder, made a scratch two-base hit to short centre field and then romped home with the winning run when Huntington Hardwick drove the ball far over Middlebrook's head. It was a clean home run, but did not count as such in the score as the game ended as Gannett crossed the plate.

It was this same Hardwick who tackled Wheeler, of Yale, so hard in the football game at New Haven last fall that he dropped the ball and made it possible for Harvard to score its first touchdown in eleven years against the Blue. Hardwick this year has made his varsity letter in three sports—football, baseball and track.

Felton Does His Part.

Sam Felton, who also has been a thorn in Yale's football flesh, pitched the full game for the Crimson, and held Yale to five hits, scattered through as many innings. Felton, however, gave twelve bases on balls, made a wild pitch and hit a man, but the visitors failed to take advantage of his wildness. He gave two passes in the third and fourth innings, when hits by Riddell and Scofield brought in runs for Yale.

Another pass in the eighth frame advanced a Yale runner from first base, and put him in a position to score on a sacrifice and a "Cincinnati" base hit that went from Middlebrook's bat to Clark.

"Buster" Brown started the game for Yale and went along until two hits were made off his delivery after two men had been retired in the eleventh inning. Then Gile, who pitched yesterday's game at New Haven, took the mound and checked Harvard's rally for the moment.

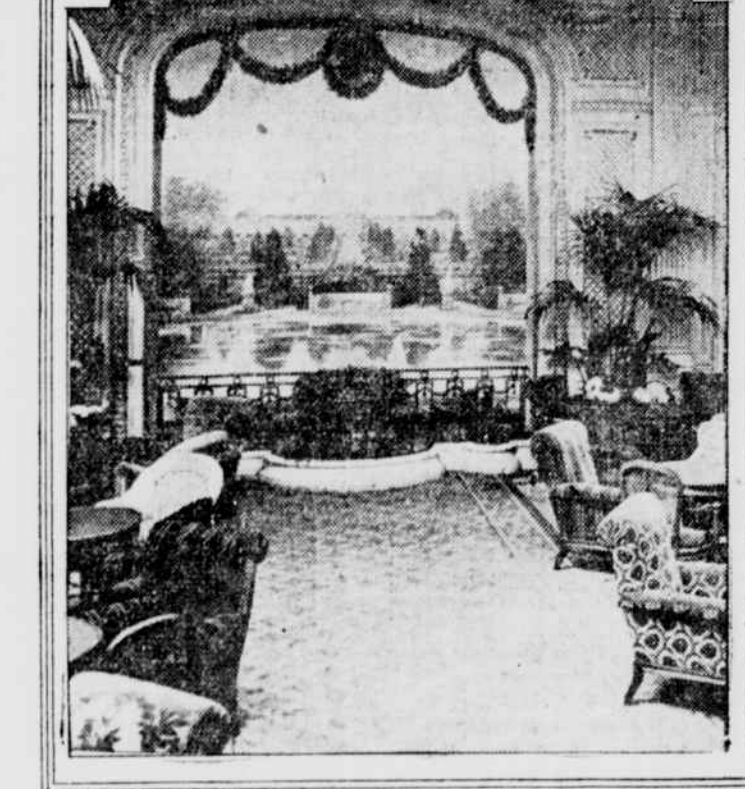

Of the Crimson's eleven hits one was a home run, two were doubles and two triples. Clark made the home run in the first inning. Felton's triple in the fifth was wasted, but in the ninth a three-bagger by Ayres was combined with a single by Gannett, which tied the score and sent the game into the extra innings.

Only Five Hits for Yale.

Yale's only hit for more than one base was made by Pumpelly, but after two hands were out in the ninth inning, Yale did not make a hit in the last five innings against Felton, who pitched stronger and stronger as the game wore along. In spite of his failure to locate the plate at times, he struck out fourteen men, and this proved his salvation, as he was in a "hole" in practically every inning, particularly as the Yale men ran the bases wild against "Bill" Young.

In the fourteenth inning Young made a wild throw that put Reilly on third.

FIRE HELD UP STEAMER

But the Bunker Hill's Passengers Didn't Know It.

Boston, June 18.—A small fire discovered in the forward boiler room of the steamer Bunker Hill, of the Metropolitan Line, soon after the vessel left Boston for New York late to-day, forced her to lay to for a time just outside Boston Harbor.

The fire was extinguished, however, without causing any material damage, and none of the passengers was aware of it, according to a wireless message.

CURES STOMACH CANCER

Dr. Mayo Says Disease Yields to the Knife.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Minneapolis, June 18.—"Cancer of the stomach is a curable disease," said Dr. William J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., speaking before the American Medical Association at the University of Minnesota to-day.

"A favorable diagnosis can be established by simple methods," he asserted. "A history of gastric disturbance precedes cancer in a large number of cases. Operations for cancer of the stomach should begin as an exploration. Moderate involvement of the pancreas does not necessarily preclude operation. Palliative operations have a field of usefulness."

Dr. Mayo gave a review of statistics of signs and symptoms observed in one thousand patients operated on for cancer of the stomach.

Radium as a physical agency was discussed by Dr. Howard A. Kelly, of Baltimore. Its action, he said, is local and it is destined to be a potent aid in the treatment of gynecologic conditions. He asserted that radium will cure some cancers and will especially eliminate many cases of local recurrence which are difficult to treat by many of the customary surgical methods.

BATTLE TO SAVE A LIFE

Surgeons Working Over Man Found Floating Out to Sea.

The surgeons in the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, in Brooklyn, were fighting last night to save the life of Gordon Benson, thirty-four years old, an ironworker employed in the Morse Iron Works, who was picked up in the Narrows yesterday morning as he was floating out to sea. Benson was regarded as dead by Captain Brown of the tugboat Julie M. who saw him floating on the surface of the water and laid him on a dock, covered by a tarpaulin.

Several hours after Benson had been placed on the dock Patrolman Cunningham, of the Fourth Avenue station, Brooklyn, went to the pier to search the supposedly dead man's clothing. He detected signs of life in the body and summoned an ambulance surgeon. After several hours of work the surgeons in the hospital said they would be able to save Benson's life.

REVOLVER STOPS SPEEDER

Halts Princeton Student in Auto Chase on Broadway.

Charged with exceeding the speed limit, reckless driving and intoxication, William Callery, a Princeton student, son of the president of the Pittsburgh Street Railway Company, was arrested last night at Broadway and 96th street after leading Patrolman Gelderman, on a motorcycle, a thrilling chase of more than a mile up Broadway.

In the racing automobile with Callery was Miss Kathryn Lynn, of Providence. Callery's offence, under the new automobile law, is a serious one, and the police would not admit him to bail. Gelderman was at the corner of 54th street and Broadway when Callery swept by. The policeman started after the machine, his motorcycle showing a speed of forty-seven miles an hour at times. He called to Callery to stop several times, but the student only opened his throttle wider. Finally Gelderman drew his revolver and threatened to blow up a tire of the automobile unless Callery stopped, and this had the desired effect.

BRITISH MOUNT GUNS

ON THE LUSITANIA

Liner to Be Here Soon with Big Naval Rifles Bristling Over Her Sides.

[By Cable to The Tribune.]

London, June 18.—The reason why the crack liner Lusitania is so long delayed at Liverpool has been announced to be because her turbine engines are being completely replaced, but Cunard officials acknowledged to The Tribune correspondent to-day that the greyhound is being equipped with high power naval rifles in conformity with England's new policy of arming passenger boats. So when the great ship, the third selected by the government for armament, next appears in New York Harbor about the end of August she will be the first British merchantman for more than a century sailing up the Lower Bay with black guns bristling over her sides.

The Lusitania, which will be an almost invaluable addition to England's merchant fleet, because not only is she so fast but of such great capacity for the carrying of troops, was originally built with her decks adapted for rifles, and the task of installing the battle guns will be comparatively easy.

It is very probable that immediately the tourist season is ended the Lusitania will be called to Liverpool, overhauled and equipped with guns. The British government is hastening the task of creating an armed fleet under the red ensign. A mailboat running to South America now carries rifles, and to-morrow the Aberdeen liner Themistocles sails out of the Thames bound for Australia equipped with the newest type of guns.

INSURANCE FIGHT
TO SAVE $1,000,000

Equitable, New York Life, Mutual Life and Metropolitan Seek Real Cause of E. O. Painter's Demise.

INJUNCTION ON VISCERA

One Company Acts in Baltimore, Where Autopsy Revealed He Died from Hardening of Arteries, Not Drowning.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Baltimore, June 18.—With the granting of an injunction here to-day restraining the disposition of the "organs, specimens or remains" of the late Edward O. Painter, fertilizer manufacturer of Jacksonville, Fla., who was reported as having taken out more than $1,000,000 in insurance, what bids fair to be a fierce battle on the part of the insurance companies to escape the payment of the policies seems assured. The injunction was obtained by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company against Dr. Charles Glaser, a chemist of this city, who has in his possession the viscera of the dead man after having performed an autopsy.

Painter, who was generally rated as a millionaire, was reported as having been drowned on May 22 in the St. John's River, opposite Jacksonville, by falling from a ferryboat. The fact that a large part of the insurance was taken out only a few months ago, and that the premiums were paid with promissory notes given by Painter led to a demand for an investigation into the cause of death to determine whether it was due to drowning or to causes preceding the falling of the body into the water. The vital organs were sent here on June 4, and Dr. Glaser and Dr. Standish McCleary were instructed to prepare an analysis.

Other Companies Involved.

In addition to the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, other life and accident concerns who are interested in the investigation are the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, the New York Life Insurance Company, the Equitable Life Assurance Society and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, also of New York. The amount of Painter's policy in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York alone is reported as in the neighborhood of $500,000, with the other companies involved in varying large amounts.

According to the application for the injunction, which was granted this afternoon by Judge Duffy, of the Circuit Court, the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company issued April 21, 1913, to Painter a policy, under which it was agreed that $20,000 would be paid to the beneficiary upon the death through accident of Mr. Painter. It also contained a suicide clause.

The bill alleges, "upon information and belief," that within three months previous to his death, Painter took out accident and life insurance policies to an amount exceeding $1,000,000. It further alleges, "upon information and belief," that the aggregate premiums on the policies exceed $800,000 a year, while it is alleged that so far as has been ascertained the dead man's income did not exceed $25,000 annually.

The complaint continues with the claim that shortly after Mr. Painter's death part of his lungs, stomach, liver, and other organs were removed from his body and part were sent to the two Baltimore physicians for chemical analysis. The company claims that it has the right of autopsy, and made such a demand, but that it was refused. It asks an independent investigation, and declares that it has been advised the members of the Painter family have made a demand for the viscera. The injunction is to restrain their surrender by the physician.

No Trace of Poison.

According to the reports prepared by Dr. Glaser and Dr. McCleary and submitted by them to the authorities in Jacksonville, no trace of poison was found in the viscera. At the time of the transmission of the organs to the pathological department of Johns Hopkins Medical School, it was intimated such traces might be found. The experts found, however, that the dead man was suffering to some extent from arterio sclerosis, or hardening of the arteries.

Local insurance companies whose agents insured Edward O. Painter for more than $1,000,000 are vitally interested in the outcome of investigations now being conducted by their representatives. Although they said yesterday that their reports were not completed, they admitted every effort was being made to determine the cause of Painter's death.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York and the New York Life Insurance Company are generally credited with being the most heavily interested. From several sources the Mutual's policies were stated as approximating $500,000. Officials of the company, however, declared that a large part of this was reinsured with foreign concerns.

Painter a Good Risk.

According to an official of one of the companies, Painter was considered an excellent risk when he applied for insurance several months ago. Following his death and the news that a large part of the first premium was paid with promissory notes, an investigation was instituted. The second instalment of premiums was not yet due.

The policies issued were both accident
